Letters to The Editor

Editor,
Torrance Herald
Why shouldn't Torrance have a swimming pool? It seems to me that in a city of this size and as prosperous as ours, there should be some way of cooling off after a hard day's work.
For years, we heard vague murmurs about a cool plunge for this community, but that is all. Lip music will not give our kids a place to swim, nor will it provide a place for working people who would like to take a short dip at the end of a sweltering day.
We ought to start building a swimming pool. Now!
For those who work, the beach is too far distant; pleasurable swimming cannot be realized after the fog starts rolling in. Then too, many children are not allowed to stray too far from home for their recreation. Where are they to swim?
A pool would be an excellent place where entire families could go swimming together or enjoy a swim meet. Then too, a pool would pay for itself and might be more profitable than the civic auditorium. Who wants to sit inside when the temperature is in the upper eighties?
Not only do I feel a pool is a necessity for residents, I know it would be a drawing card for outsiders to visit and become more familiar with our community.

Extradited Passer Now Paying

Wilfred F. Fay is presently sitting out a 10-day sentence in the Los Angeles County Jail for passing a bum check in Torrance.
Fay, who listed his place of residence as Sawtelle, this week was extradited from Oakland by Police Chief John Stroh and subsequently sentenced by City Judge Otto B. Willett.
Fay, who was reportedly arrested in Oakland on charges of operating a "skin game" had previously skipped Torrance following a $25 fine given him by Judge Willett for allegedly passing a $32.15 bad check to a local printing firm.

At the time he was fined Judge Willett allowed Fay a week to make good the money. It was then that he skipped town, police said.
